INTRODUCTORY.

The first volume of the Indianapolis City Directory was issued in 1855. It was a small volume, but Indianapolis was then a small city. As Indianapolis has grown, the Directory has increased in pages until it is a large volume. At first but comparatively few copies were published; now it is an essential in every store, office and factory in the city. No book is so much in evidence. The person coming to town to find friend or business man, goes to the nearest office on his arrival to find a Directory. If he does not find it, he departs with the impression that the people in that place are not doing much business. By the same token, if the Directory is nearly out of its covers and bears marks of much usage, he concludes that it is a place frequented by many people. No book in the city is so much consulted. The lady making her list of invitations consults it for addresses; the business man sending out notices or filling orders finds it necessary and all those who desire to find somebody seek the City Directory. If a man in another city writes to ascertain something of a resident, the person of whom the inquiry is made goes to the City Directory to find the name. If it is not there the answer is "I cannot tell."

This Directory contains 71,747 names. On the basis of 2¾ inhabitants to each name in the Directory, the population of Indianapolis January 1, 1899, was 197,304. Last year the population of the city, on the same basis, was 194,700—not so large a gain as the year previous, because of the absorption of several suburbs in 1897. Increase in population is not, however, the best indication of material growth. In business, and particularly in those industries which afford full employment to the people, 1898 was one of unprecedented prosperity. That its business and industry are on a sound basis, the shortest list of business failures in recent years is the best possible proof. The fact that Indianapolis financial companies took the last issue of bonds as the lowest bidders shows that capital is abundant in the city.

It may be said that Indianapolis is what it is to-day more by what may be called the inventions of man than any city in the country. It has no navigable rivers which, before the era of railroads, made the building of large cities possible. Because it was near the geographical center of the State it was selected for its capital. Its first settlement was in 1820. It could scarcely have been called a village in 1825 when it was made the capital. The location of the capital in Indianapolis called settlers to the vicinity, but having no navigable river and no roads, it was isolated. The real growth of the city began with its first railroad, in 1847. Thereafter, its growth kept pace with the development of railroads, which have become its arterial system through which pulsates the life blood of commerce and binds it to the rest of the country. Location and its system of railroads have made Indianapolis the real capital and metropolis of Indiana as few State capitals are. As the years pass, Indianapolis becomes more and more the political, commercial and social center of Indiana. Whatever the citizen of Indiana may say of the greed of Indianapolis when legislative favors and offices are in question, he feels that the capital of the State is his and he is proud of it. And well he may be, since the Indianapolis of to-day is made up largely of men who were born in other counties, thus connecting it by kindred or social ties to every part of Indiana. Thus the future of Indianapolis is bound to the rest of the State by many and inseparable ties. No section of the State can prosper without Indianapolis sharing the benefit, and this city cannot enjoy a prosperity that the rest of the State cannot share.

Almost the center of the country's population, Indianapolis is fast becoming one of the favorite cities for national assemblages of business men, scientific and professional organizations. It has ample hotel and other accommodations, while the town, built upon what was once swamps and bogs, has become one of the most beautiful cities in the land—to use the words of Admiral Brown, "the most beautiful city in the world in which to live."

The publishers congratulate themselves that the Forty-fifth Volume is an improvement in some respects upon those which have preceded it. It cannot contain many new features, but the greater familiarity with the city and the greater accuracy incident to experience warrants the conviction that the issue for 1899 is superior to its predecessors.

With each passing year the publishers have realized their obligation to the people of Indianapolis for their support and uniform courtesy to their agents. Their obligation is greater now than a year ago.

R. L. POLK & CO.'S

Indianapolis City Directory.

1899.

STREETS AND AVENUES.

THE Street Directory is an alphabetical arrangement of the names of the Streets and Avenues of the city. By the decimal system of numbering houses recently adopted in this city, one hundred numbers are allotted to each square. On streets running north and south the numbering begins at Washington street. The streets running east and west are numbered East and West from Meridian street. All other streets not commencing at either of the above points are numbered in accordance with this system. The names and numbers of intersecting streets and avenues are given in the order in which they occur, which enables one to tell between what streets a certain number is. For instance, you have 820 Harlan street: by reference to the Street Directory, you find 800 at Lexington av. and 900 at Pleasant street; consequently, the place you wish to find is between Lexington av. and Pleasant street.

The marginal letters of the alphabet refer to the nearest street car line. For example, you wish to go to 520 E. Sixteenth: you refer to Sixteenth street in the Street Directory and find that 520 would be between Central av. and Park av. and the letter "B" in the margin, then by referring to the street railway lines you find the letter "B" is the Central av. line, which is the nearest car.

SOLID VESTIBULED TRAIN SERVICE VIA

Grand Trunk Railway System

IN CONNECTION WITH THE

Picturesque Lehigh Valley Railroad, via Niagara Falls.

GRAND TRUNK NEW SINGLE ARCH DOUBLE TRACK STEEL BRIDGE OVER THE NIAGARA RIVER.

The new bridge is a single steel arch of 550 feet in length, supplemented by a trussed span, at either end, of 115 feet in length. This with the approaches, makes the total length of the bridge slightly over 1,100 feet. The railway tracks surmounting the bridge are 252 feet above the water. The bridge has two decks or floors. On the upper floor there are two tracks for railway purposes exclusively, while the lower floor contains a wide central carriageway, double electric railway tracks, and on either side passageway for pedestrians.

As an evidence of the enormous strength of this beautiful structure, the arch is designed to carry on each railway track a load of two locomotives with four pairs of drivers each and 40,000 pounds on each pair, followed by a train of 3,500 pounds per running foot, and is designed to carry in addition a live load of 3,000 pounds per running foot on the lower floor. The general public will, however, probably be better able to arrive at a correct understanding of the enormous sustaining power of the new bridge by the fact that it is calculated to sustain a weight of something over six times the sustaining capacity of the historic Suspension Bridge, which it replaces.

FACULTY:

BYRON K. ELLIOTT, President. W. P. FISHBACK, Dean.

A. C. HARRIS. C. W. FAIRBANKS. JOHN R. WILSON.

The Annual Sessions of the Indiana Law School begin in October and the School Year closes in May. It is the purpose of this Department of the University to prepare and thoroughly train students in the science of Law so that, upon graduation, they shall be fully equipped to immediately begin the practice of their profession. The corps of instructors and lecturers embraces gentlemen who are now in the active and successful practice of the law, and whose proficiency as instructors is attested by the high standard that has been attained by the members of the graduating classes.

The location of the Indiana Law School offers exceptional advantages by reason of its proximity to the Federal Courts, the Supreme and Appellate Courts, the four Marion County Courts, and the large libraries of the Supreme Court and Bar Association of Indianapolis, to all of which students will have access. For information, address

W. P. FISHBACK, Dean, Indianapolis, Ind.

"To be first in anything is a distinction."

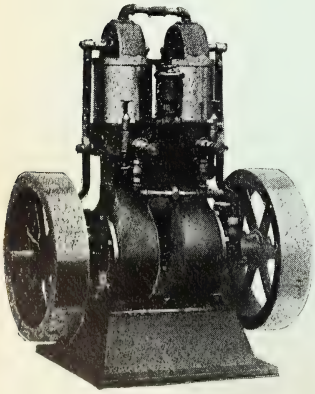
—Plato.

We believe that we have achieved the "distinction" of manufacturing and selling Oil or Gas Motors cheaper than the same can be bought elsewhere in America, consistent with first-class labor and material. No matter where they are or what is advertised.

Our Motor differs from all other engines used for the same purpose, whether run by gas, oil or steam. We guarantee these Motors to run successfully on natural or artifical gas, naptha, gosoline, benzine, coal oil, and in connection with a generator, crude oil can be used.

Single Cylinder gives power stroke every revolution, Double Cylinder gives power stroke every half revolution. For electric generators, Double Cylinder Motor gives equally as steady power as the best steam engine.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED ON APPLICATION



These Motors are Made from 3-4 to 100 Horse Power
